ARRM Announces Newly Elected Board Members

SOUTH SAINT PAUL, Minn. – The Association of Residential Resources in Minnesota (ARRM), a statewide association of private community-based providers that support people with disabilities, is pleased to announce its 2014-2017 board of directors.

“We are especially excited about the potential contributions of our new board members,” said ARRM’s CEO Bruce Nelson. “As disability services in Minnesota continue to undergo dramatic transformations in how they are funded and regulated, this board will be instrumental in advancing quality services, as well as sustaining and building ARRM’s membership.”

ARRM’s board is a working entity of disability industry leaders empowered by their organizations to make decisions affecting services for thousands of Minnesotans with disabilities. During the nomination process, ARRM sought experts from the disability provider community who will make significant contributions to ARRM and the larger disability industry the coming years.
